

Stevenson Accounting selects desktopsites Konect Virtual Access and Application Delivery Solution to deliver secure remote application access desktopsites Konect software solution gains further foothold in the Canadian Accounting Sector.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Calgary, Alberta, Canada 03/12/08 desktopsites Inc. ('desktopsites'), a rapidly emerging leader in Virtual Access and Application Delivery software solutions for small and mid-size businesses, is pleased to announce the implementation of desktopsites Konect Virtual Access and Application Delivery software solution as part of Stevenson Accounting's ('Stevenson Accounting') infrastructure to deliver secure remote application, file and data access to off site employees. Stevenson Accounting is a Saskatchewan based, professional management accounting and consulting firm, providing a wide range of tax, accounting and business consulting services to individuals and small businesses.

"We needed to provide off site employees with remote access to our tax and accounting applications and data. We have a small office located in a remote town approximately 50 kilometers from our head office. As not all of our employees are technologically savvy, our solution had to be easy to implement and work with. Time factors also created a necessity for a quick implementation," says Brad Stevenson, Vice President of Stevenson Accounting. "Konect was implemented during our busiest time of the year. We have been very impressed with how everything worked for our new offsite location this year. Without Konect software, its straightforward interface and the courtesy of the desktopsites staff, we know we would have never been able to make this possible."

Technologies such as Konect, in conjunction with changes in business practices, have encouraged employers to allow jobs to be done from home or remote locations. Business owners and employees who use their cars to commute to and from work often waste hundreds of hours of valuable productivity time each year sitting in traffic or on highways," said Alex Bethlehem, President and CEO at desktopsites. "Instead of getting up before dawn to beat the rush, commuters such as Stevenson Accounting have taken action today to relieve their burden by adopting remote access and centralized application delivery solutions such as Konect to accomplish a number of goals which, in the past, would not have been achievable."

About desktopsites Inc.

desktopsites is a leading developer of innovative and cost effective Virtual Access Software for small and mid-size businesses. desktopsites' Konect Virtualization Access Software solution delivers access to network applications and resources for small and mid-size businesses without sacrificing the features typically available with more expensive access infrastructure alternatives.

desktopsites is a privately-held Canadian corporation with head offices in Calgary, AB, Canada. desktopsites' Konect solution is available to small and mid-size businesses across North America and Europe through our channel network. For further information visit <http://www.desktopsites.com>

About Stevenson Accounting

Stevenson Accounting is a Saskatchewan based, professional management accounting and consulting firm, providing a wide range of tax, accounting and business consulting services to individuals and small businesses. Helping clients succeed for over two decades, Stevenson Accounting has been providing solutions to individuals and small businesses in the Swift current and surrounding area since 1985. To this day, the firm continues to serve an ever growing client base of IT consultants, professionals, grain and cattle producers and other owner managed businesses.

For further information please contact:

Laura Armstrong, Vice President
desktopsites, Inc.
Phone: 403.538.0105
Email: info@desktopsites.com

Brad Stevenson, Vice President
Stevenson Accounting
Phone: 306-773-3477
Email: admin@stevensonaccounting.ca

Konect™ is a registered trademark of desktopsites Inc.